NBN MEETING REJECTS OFFER

An offer by NBN to settle the start of day (SOD) and end of day overtime claim has been rejected. Almost 90% of members voting rejected the offer. We began a Court case against NBN seeking overtime for the 30 minutes of work at the start and end of day. The hearing is currently listed for mid April.

NATIONAL WAGE CASE – 5% CLAIM

Every year, the Fair Work Commission reviews the national minimum wage and award wages via the Annual Wage Review. And every year, the union movement calls a fair and decent increase. Australia's lowest paid workers need an above-inflation pay rise, having borne the brunt of cost-of-living increases. . More

ROYAL MAIL MEETS EXPECTATIONS? BBC

Postal workers from across the UK have told the BBC they are being asked to move or hide mail from senior bosses so it looks like delivery targets are being met. They told BBC Your Voice they are often told by managers "take the mail for a ride" when they raise that they have too many parcels to have time to deliver letters as well. .

UPDATE: TELSTRA PUSHES AHEAD WITH INFOSYS OUTSOURCING DEAL

Telstra has now confirmed it will proceed with its five-year plan to outsource major parts of Service & Delivery to Infosys, subject only to regulatory approval. This marks yet another phase in Telstra's aggressive offshoring agenda, which will see hundreds of skilled Australian jobs wiped out and critical technical capability shifted to a foreign-owned corporation. .
